GLENLOTH GAME

These birds are grown on Ian Millburn's property at Glenloth in a clean pollution free region known as the Mallee in North Central Victoria. Pheasant and Guinea Fowl are largely still seasonal in Australia with the first young birds being put into growing sheds in early November. After 4 weeks they are shifted to free range conditions where they can pick at native grasses and wild herbs as well as their usual feed made from fresh whole grains. The birds need the cool nights to put on a layer of fat under the skin giving the meat a succulent moist and slightly gamey flavour. These birds are excellent for roasting, baking or grilling. Serve with a full blooded red wine. Delicious!
