KANGAROO

Our delectable Kangaroo products offer the premium eco-dining experience.

Soft-footed and thus low-impact, kangaroos are naturally adapted to Australia's fragile soils and do not contribute to top soil erosion unlike heavy-hoofed introduced species such as cattle and sheep. Evolving in Australia over millions of years, kangaroos are superiorly adapted to harsh drought conditions meaning, they do not require grain feeding and carbon-intensive relocation during the inevitable dry spells. Harvested in the wild, kangaroos are able to graze in their native habitat. This natural diet of grasses means kangaroos are spared the artificial hormones and chemicals which are common in livestock which can enter eco-system disturbing the natural balance. Kangaroo's eco-friendly credentials are further strengthened in that they do not emit harmful greenhouses gases such as methane. This is in stark contrast to the cattle and sheep industry which release significant amounts of methane during digestion and are a major contributor of climate change inducing emissions in Australia.
